Going Down.

"This high cost of living problem is getting to be something terrible," observed Mrs. Nutley. "Everything is getting higher." "Oh, I don't know," replied her husband, soothingly. "There's your opinion of me, for instance, and my opinion of you, and our mutual opinion of our neighbors, and the neighbors' opinion of both of us."

How to Fight the House Fly.

Homer H. Coy, writing in Leslie's Magazine says:

Pyrethrum powder burnt in a house stupefies a fly until you can sweep him up and put him where he belongs. A little of this burnt in the rooms in the morning, after which the rooms should be aired—will make the house exempt from flies all day. Twenty drops of carbolic acid dropped on a hot shovel or on any piece of warm iron creates a vapor that lays flies low. The common mignonette plant grown in jars and placed in a room makes things unpleasant for the flies. A dandy thing is the white clover. It is strange, but flies hate the odor of white clover. Have a little of this around in a vase and you will notice that the flies have business in other direction. This clover should be renewed every day or so, for when it becomes dry it irritates the nostrils. A cheap and effective poison, not dangerous to the human life, is bichlorate of potash in solution. One drachm dissolved in two ounces of sweetened water and placed in shallow dishes will call the roll for any number of pests. Another remedy for all purposes has few equals is a solution of formaline or formaldehyde in water. A spoonful of this liquid in a quart of a pint of water left exposed in a room will make the flies scarce in a very short time. Flies are sensitive to light; keep the window curtains drawn, all except one little slit, and they will gravitate toward it. Then you can easily drive them outside.

"Merchant of Venice" at P. H. S.

On Thursday evening, May 29, the Dramatic Club of the Paris High School will give an up-to-date reproduction of the "Merchant of Venice." The original theme of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" will be followed. All suitors for fair Portia's hand must, according to the stern will of her dead father, choose from three caskets and pass examinations therein contained. Bassanio, the hero, passes this examination with the aid of a pony rented from Shylock. But the pony is not returned to Shylock at the set date who in turn appears on the football field, the day of the great Thanksgiving game, and demands his forfeit from Antonio, the captain. The case is taken to court and there settled by a young and learned Doctor from Bel-lania who proves to be fair Portia in disguise. In due time this brings about the wedding of Portia and Bassanio, also of Nerissa, Portia's friend, and Gratiano and everybody is happy. This play is in five acts and promises to be well worth your time.

Admission, 25 cents; school children 15 cents. The play will begin at 8 o'clock.

The cast of characters follow:

Regions Still Unexplored.

The mighty mass of the Himalayas, the loftiest of all mountains, "the roof of the world," has not been penetrated to its center. No man has yet approached nearer than a hundred miles from the foot of Mount Everest, which lifts its snowy head five miles and a half above sea level. There are lofty valleys among the Himalayas of whose existence and whose inhabitants only traditions are known.

Cancer Not Contagious.

In the June American Dr. Woods Hutchinson writes a department entitled "Health and Horse Power," in which he contributes a short article entitled "A New Spear Against the Cancer Dragon." Following is an extract:

"The commonest site of cancer in men is the mouth region, particularly the lips or tongue at the time which the teeth are beginning to be lost and the jaws to shrivel in consequence, and nearly three-fifths of cancers that occur in women develop in the organs of reproduction, the uterus and mammary glands after the menopause, or change of life. Hence, we know that it is well to pay early and prompt attention to warts, fissures or chronic ulcers, jagged or projecting teeth in men between forty-five and sixty, and to any pains, hemorrhages, or serious disturbances in women near or just following the change of life.

"Although several forms of cancer can be readily transmitted from one case to another in mice, in chickens, and several other animals, all the attempts to discover the organism or germ of the process, or to find valid evidence of infection of one human being with cancer from another case have failed utterly. So that there appears to be no reason at present for believing that the disease is either caused by a germ or is infectious or contagious in any way. Those who have charge of such cases have no reason to dread infection, although the most scrupulous cleanliness and and all aseptic and antiseptic precautions should be taken."

STOCK AND FARM NOTES

—Mt. Sterling Court—There was a very light run of cattle on the market at Mt. Sterling court Monday, possibly 1,000 head, with quality common, very few good cattle being seen in the pens. Trade was dull, and this was on account of the shortness of grass. Prices were as high as usual, 8 cents being paid for some cattle. The best 900-pound cattle brought 7 1/2 cents; heifers sold at from 5 1/2 to 6 cents; yearling steers sold at from 6 1/2 to 7 1/2 cents; cows at from 5 to 5 1/2 cents; bulls 6 cents; old cows and rough oxen from 2 1/2 to 4 cents.

Matt Long, of Paris, bought nine Tennessee cows and calves at $57.50 per head from Chas. Rose.

—Georgetown Court—There was a small crowd attended Georgetown court Monday, a few farmers were busy with their work. Ninety head of cattle and a few head of horses changed hands. The prices were very good and the demand active. The best offerings of the cattle market brought seven cents per pound.

Calves brought from $14.50 to $20 per head; yearlings brought from $28 to $34 each. There were no large cattle offered. Horses brought from $50 to $225 each.

Jas. B. Clark, of Bunker Hill, Montgomery county, sold last week to Myers & McClintock, of Millersburg, his fine two-year-old jack, Comromise, for $1,125. This jack will be shown all over Kentucky this year. He is one of the best in the State.

—Having discovered 200 flocks of sheep in the Stetl infected with foot rot the Live Stock Sanitary Board issued an order quarantining these flocks and the order will become effective June 1.

"All is Well That Ends Well"

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness, sleeplessness and general ill health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be assimilated and carried to the blood. On the other hand, the blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion. In turn, the nerves are not fed on good, red blood and we see those symptoms of nervous breakdown. It is not head work that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor thin blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip—bronchitis—consumption. Fortify the body now with
